For Comparison.

Montclair issues ten excise licenses and makes the fee $400. West Orange has twenty at $200. Orange grants one hundred licenses at $250 each. Which of the three municipalities derives the greatest profits? Let some mathematician figure it out—taking into account the amount paid annually for police protection.—Montclair Times.

Instruction.

IN THE TWILIGHT OF LOVE.

If years ago you told me, dear,
That on a day our dreams would fade
To these half hearted fancies drear,
I should have grieved and felt dismayed.

But yet so softly has the rain
Of dead years' ashes settled on
Each glowing passion that the pain
Was smothered ere all light had gone.

Ah, be it thus with love's decease!
Its day is done; its shrine too high
To brave time's destined tragedies.
Let us steal down ere night comes by.
—Thomas Walsh in Bookman.

EYES LIKE TELESCOPES.

The South African Bushmen Are Gifted With Marvelous Sight.

It has often been remarked that civilized people tend to become short sighted. This is because in towns and cities their vision is mostly confined to short distances. Savage races, on the other hand, are generally gifted with remarkably keen sight, and few tribes are more noteworthy in this respect than the African bushmen, whose eyes are veritable telescopes. This power is no doubt a wise provision of nature, for the bushmen are a small race, and if they were not able to see danger a long way off they would soon be exterminated by their various enemies, whether savages of other tribes or wild beasts.

A traveler in South Africa relates that while walking one day in company with a friendly bushman the savage suddenly stopped, and gazing across the plain cried out that there was a lion ahead. The traveler gazed long and earnestly in the direction indicated by the bushman, but could see nothing. "Nonsense," he said, "there's nothing there." And he went forward again, with the bushman following at his heels, trembling and unwilling and still asserting that he could see a lion.

Presently the native came to a dead stop and refused to budge another inch, for this time, he declared, he could see a lioness with a number of cubs, a fact which made the animal more dangerous than ever. But the European, who could see no lioness, much less its cubs, pushed ahead, declaring the bushman was dreaming. After walking a quarter of a mile, however, he could dimly make out an object moving across the horizon. Still doubting that it could be the object which the bushman said he had seen, he continued to advance, and at last was able to distinguish a lioness with her cubs around her, walking leisurely toward the woods.—Chums.

In the Hands of an Enemy.

"Saw a strange thing in Toledo the other day," said a citizen who was being shaved in a Griswold street barber shop. "I was walking from the hotel to the office of a lumber firm and met a man one side of whose face was black as your hat."

Every razor along the line was suspended in the air and the white of every eye became more prominent.

"Wouldn't dat kill you?" gasped the artist in charge of the narrator. "Dat takes de rag su'. An de odder side wa' white?"

"No; that was black too."

There was no work done for some time, as all but the man who had done the questioning were shouting their hilarity. He looked so fierce and made such unprofessional slashes with his razor that the citizen decided to let his mustache grow, didn't want his hair combed and left a half a dollar without mentioning change. — Detroit Free Press.

Gussie's Big Brothers.

"Yes," said the principal of the young ladies' seminary to the proud parent, "you ought to be very happy, my dear sir, to be the father of so large a family, all the members of which appear to be so devoted to one another."

"Devoted! Large family!" gasped the old gentleman in amazement. "What on earth do you mean, ma'am?"

"Why, yes, indeed," said the principal, beaming through her glasses. "No fewer than 11 of Gussie's brothers have been here this term to take her out, and she tells me she expects the tall one with the blue eyes again tomorrow."—London Tit-Bits.

Arney-Drake.

Miss Clara Drake, daughter of Mrs. Carrie Drake of No. 490 Bloomfield avenue, and Frederick Arney were married on Saturday evening, the 2nd inst., at the home of the bride's mother. The Rev. E. A. White officiated. The bridesmaid was Miss Anna Drake, sister of the bride, and Howard Eilor was best man. The house decorations were daises and honeysuckle, and the ceremony was performed under a bell of daises. Many friends of the bride and groom were present at the wedding.

Trouble in Silver Lake.

John Comes, it is alleged caused a disturbance in the Silver Lake section Sunday afternoon. Constable Gorham, who was on duty there, went to arrest him when Antonio Fabi interfered. In the tussle which ensued, Fabi it is said, bit one of the constable's fingers. Gorham succeeded, however, in arresting the two men. They were taken before Justice Campbell, who fined Comes $2.50 and costs and held Fabi for the grand jury under $300 bail.
